Memories

Maddie Ferguson

Familiar music fills my ears,
 Things I haven't heard in years.
 Long lost ghosts that shine so bright & leave my dreams at the end of the night.
 I don't know what this music could be,
 But it sounds just like a memory.
 People & places, sights & sounds,
 Come to make their nightly rounds.
 Haunting reminders of the past,
 But it's the soundtrack that follows this ghostly cast.
 For it's what I hear, not what I see
 That sounds just like a memory.
 On no known instrument does it play,
 But I know just what it has to say.
 It reminds me of friends, reminds me of foes,
 As the mournful melody softly flows.
 And the music continues beautifully,
 This is the sound of a memory.

not many appreciate a bench-
 until, of course, it's time to wrench
 off shoes and massage calves
 and complain to our better halves
 about how we rue the day we knew the sky was blue
 and beautiful too
 so that it drew us out of comfortable
 homes away from coffee table
 and easy chair to instead be sunburned, tired, and happy.

i want to kill myself.
 today at recess
 as I was walking
 to the water fountain
 some fat kid called me weird.
 i told him I knew that already.
 and that he was fat
 so shut up.
 the other kids laugh at me.
 just because I wear black
 and write about things
 that are real
 like death
 and loneliness
 and blood
 and I don't submit to them.
 fascists.
 on second thought
 i don't want to kill myself.
 i have so much
 to live for.
 like writing.

TIP: WAND STAYS UP RIGHT THROUGH NO

Zest Found From Nothing
By: Dustin Noel

A cool spring breeze
Brought to you by the trees.
Colors calm and silent,
Delicacy found in the most unviolent
Energetically moving through the forest,
Following the path of those who took no rest.
Greatness obtained by leadership,
Honesty is the key to this trip.
Intelligence was given to the,
Jumping from land to tree.
Kinder shall be thine soul,
Leadership beginning to take its toll.
Many have tried to surpass,
None greater than the last.
Obstructions will stop your path,
Power in your words will give them deadly wrath.
Quarrels may occur between those.
Skeptical to the king,
Trouble to him we shall bring.
United with the world you stand,
Valued like a diamond throughout the land.
Warriors with weapons can never defeat you,
X-Ray the fog thick and through.
You must tell what you know to no one not even a friend,
Zest will stay with you until the end.

Thank you so much for all the time and hard work you put into the yearbook!
